Who says tennis is a waste of time?

I was out on the courts in El Paso during a slow time in Texas Press Association's newspaper convention when they put up names for that 96-year-old organization's board.

I was out on the courts the next day during a slow time in the convention when they announced them.

Martin's dad drew a three-year term on the board.

Leslie, incidentally, liked El Paso, particularly the dog racing at Juarez, and the upbeat tempos of a group which played modern Latin music using a harp, a high-pitched guitar-mandolin, drums like those used by the "Carpenters" and the "yip, yip" of the bass player.

Oh, yes, Martin discovered serious tennis those couple of days. I worked him up almost to distemper, but it came off okay when he leveled one of the kids at this club, 6-1.

There was work too, and speeches to hear and reports and discussions to audit.

Leslie also talked at length with "Miss El Paso" and "Miss Texas--U.S.A." at a reception. These were tall gals and quite at home with the press.

Les got some insights into bigtime beauty pageantry, one of the pluses of a press gathering and tagging along on the 600-mile "rocket ride" to the furtherest place in Texas that is still Texas.

El Paso is anywhere from 3,500 to 7,000 feet, depending on what mountain you stand on or what arroyo you stand in.

To give you some idea of the tennis weather, it was 103 degrees at mid-afternoon two days and the humidity was 7 percent. People get nosebleeds in the aridity. My face baked medium well below the eyes, "done" on the forehead, which turned to red parchment.

One native El Pasoan smiled approval at a late-afternoon sandstorm, because it meant the wind was blowing and water-cooled air conditioning in many places worked better in a breeze.

They don't paint rock green or scatter sand in front yards, however, like they do in Arizona and New Mexico. El Paso has water enough for watering grass, and it is quite a nice city of about 400,000.

I liked the town. And some of the local leaders were impressed to know that Central Texas Cameron was one of the six winners in the Governor's Texas beautification competition.

And when a well-run town like El Paso, more continental than Texan, finds that an impressive statistic, it reinforces this writer's claim that going for the civic roses and winning them is worth a great deal more than Cameronites and Cen-Texans realize.

El Pasoans and the press know where Cameron is, and impressed though it is less than 6,000 and out of the running for the kind of "sunshine" they have out there.

The tennis was easy.

Firemen Answer Calls

Cameron Volunteer Firemen answered two residental calls over the weekend. The first was on Friday night to a house at Sixth and Orchard, and on Saturday afternoon, a call was answered to 1404 E. First where a gas line had ruptured on a stove.

Luecke Elected To Directorship

Frank M. Luecke, editor-publisher of The Cameron Herald, has been elected a three-year director of Texas Press Association.

New president of Texas Press Association is John Taylor, publisher of Seguin Gazette. Going to TPA board chairmanship is Glenn Sedam, publisher of Bay City Tribune.

Luecke was secretary-treasurer of the 550-member press group in 1968-69 and a member of the editorial board twice in the past decade. He is currently TPA legislative chairman.

New officers were named during the 96th convention of TPA in El Paso.

Luecke is also Texas chairman for National Newspaper Association.

LIGHTNING struck and splintered this tree located on the outskirts of Cameron, just off Hwy. 36 during the thunderstorm Monday night.

DPS Predicts 54 Holiday Casualties

The director of the Texas Department of Public Safety today estimated that traffic accidents in the state over the July 4th holiday weekend will claim 54 lives.

Colonel Wilson E. Speir said his department expects travel will be heavy in Texas over the holiday period "particularly in and around recreational areas" such as lakes and beaches.

He added that the estimate covers a 78-hour period starting on Thursday at 6 p.m. and counting until midnight Sunday. Last year during a 102- hour Independence Day celebration, 46 persons were killed in traffic mishaps in Texas.

Speir also pointed out that highway traffic deaths are about 25 per cent over the total at this time one year ago. "This is due to increased travel and somewhat higher speeds," he added.

In a concerted effort to help keep deaths down, the DPS and local law enforcement agencies will be cooperating in the all-out effort to make the streets and highways as safe as possible. All available DPS troopers will be on duty, Speir said, and they will be especially watchful for drinking drivers, speeders and persons driving in a reckless manner.

In addition, the DPS will be working with the news media in a special public education program termed "Operation Motorcide" which focuses public attention on where and why fatal accidents are occurring during the holiday.

RC Offers Lifesaving

The instructor will be Mrs. Tonya Rhodes, who will offer a Red Cross senior life-saving course. Classes will begin 6 to 8 p.m., July 7 through 25, at Cameron Municipal Pool.

Cameron City Council approved the course presentation at the city pool in Wilson-Ledbetter Park.

Entrants must be able to swim and be 15 years or older. Classes will be evenings Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

Registration forms are available at Cameron Municipal Pool, Cameron Dairy Queen, or Rockdale's Hodges Men's Shop.

Registration for classes is limited to 20.

3-2 Vote To Force Special Meetings On Paving Policy

A three-two council vote against a three-block extension of hot-mix paving on East 12 Street may lead to a called council meeting and town meeting on a street paving policy.

Mayor Gene Blake Tuesday in Council session urged a one-inch paving of East 12 Street between Jackson and Harding, but was voted down.

Expressing dissappointment, pointing to a "polarization" against his recent street paving proposals, the Mayor after the vote said in effect every proposal he had made had been turned down.

Councilman Lawrence Zotz proposed the apparent impasse between a majority of councilmen and Mayor Blake be talked out in called council meeting or further, suggested a town meeting to develop a policy for city-wide paving.

Voting against the proposal, which would have been an extension of a street designated a thoroughfare by the City's master plan were Councilmen Gene Lumpkin, Ernest Moore, and Lincoln Mondrik.

PAVING POLICY ISSUE

Motion for the extension was made by councilwoman Jan Luecke who followed her motion by asking if a city paving policy were not needed. Second was by Zotz, who agreed with Blake that some street improvements must continue while a city paving plan is developed.

Councilman Moore after the meeting noted that opposition to previous proposals by Blake included West Eighth Street, which he, Moore, saw no need to be a thoroughfare and a street at Yoe Football Stadium which included a drainage problem.

Blake said earlier that the city nearly lost the $100,000 project assured by Texas Highway Dept. on highway-related streets and a widening project along SH 36-US 77 at the east city limits.

In other action, Council heard a report from A. W. McCullin, Community Development Agency director, on progress of tearing down sub-standard housing in Cameron.

McCullin said 11 houses are in process of being torn down after 52 letters went out to property owners in recent weeks.

The letters advised that sub-standard housing, primarily vacant or totally delapidated structures, must "come down, be upgraded, moved, or released" to the Agency for destruction.

He said feedback has been broad and good.

He noted the Hill Country Community Action Association gave $1,851 for playground equipment for the new park in West Cameron, property for which is about to be purchased.

McCullin also noted that complete engineering workups had been done for the park, which also received $500 from Mrs. Thomas for water fountains.

SEWER EXTENSION

He also reported a plat had been laid out for West Cameron, though a consistent street plan did not previously exist, prior to calling for bids on a sewer extension system in Southwest Cameron.

And he noted an estimate of $53,986 for drainage work in Northeast Cameron (Green addition), based on costs experienced in Waco.

W. D. Bigbee, city inspector, said a second complaint has been filed on property code owners in West Cameron keeping upwards to 70 pigs and piglets inside the city limits. The first case was probated in City Court.

He suggested the pig pens be removed and that livestock kept within city limits in smaller numbers, but on limited acreage should be eliminated, citing cases in several parts of town.

McCullin suggested the City Zoning Commission consider carefully rezoning requests such as sought in an earlier Council meeting by Jack Tumlinson, local realtor, who wanted areas here zoned multi-family to be rezoned to single-family dwellings. The proposal will go before the Zoning Commission.

MORE FIRE PLUGS

And McCullin noted need for additional fireplugs in West Cameron, which brought recommendation for a study of needs for additional plugs within the area of east Cameron along East Fourth Street and beyond US 77 underpass to the city limits and the mobile home park in the vicinity.

Mayor Blake noted it may be feasible to find money for the East Cameron fire plugs beyond sources which are committed for the next two years.

Bigbee urged council support for a clean up of the old cemetery east of the city limits, first used as a burial ground before the Civil War. He said the city maintains an airport and parts of Wilson-Ledbetter Park which were once or still are outside the city limits.

The City had found the project outside the city limits. A cleanup effort is trying to raise about $1,000 to clean up and fence what is now called Pioneer Cemetery.

Overgrowth Takes Pioneer Cemetery--Again

Along SH 36-US 77 East... ...Donations Sought

Tall weeds, cactus and brush have again taken over the old Pioneer Cemetery near Cameron which was once the only burying ground for a young town.

Efforts are being made to collect funds for cleanup and repairs.

The old cemetery, lying about a mile east of the city on SH 36 served early settlers for about 100 years, and has tombstones dating from 1825 to 1957.

Several years ago, the late Ed Westbrook took it upon himself to clean brush and weeds from the one-acre plot, and attempted repairs to some of the tombstones that had fallen or been knocked over. But since then no cleaning has been done on most of the area, and weeds are choking plots, except for two family burying plots in the cemetery.

FENCE TORN

The fence has been torn down in one place by a truck, and friends of the cemetery will try to use part of funds collected to repair or replace the fence.

According to old newspaper reports, the cemetery was donated by Daniel and Sallie Monroe as part of the original 60-acre tract on which Cameron was built in 1846. The Monroes are buried there, but their resting place is not marked.

The City of Cameron can do nothing toward upkeep of the cemetery because it now lies outside the city limits.

The earliest legible death date found in the cemetery is on a stone near the front fence. The name is gone, but the years of birth and death are clearly visible--1825 and 1848.

Despite the ravages of time and weather, there are traces of ornamental fences around several family plots, and two plots are enclosed by low walls.

The iron fences are rusty now, the graves inside them are overgrown with weeds, and they have no identification marks. The plots enclosed by the walls all identify their occupants as Battes, Pittses, or Rices.

Trees mark the cemetery's perimeter on three sides, but some graves can be seen back among the trees and brush. Only a few are marked. But throughout the cemetery are clearly marked tombstones which tell of family grief--several families lost several children in just a few short years.

Jacob A. Ward died in 1878 and was buried here, but not before three of his children died. Martha Ward, 13, died in 1870; Mary Ward, 4, in 1871; and Elizabeth Ward, 20, in 1871. The four graves lie in a neat row, each with its own epitaph.

EPITAPH

Mary's epitaph reads "Sweet little Mary, for Earth too fair, has gone to heaven to blossom there." Elizabeth's reads, "Gone to Rest," and shows a hand with a finger pointing upward. Martha's epitaph reads, "Ere sun could blight or sorrow fade, death came with friendship; the tender bud to heaven conveyed and had its blossom there."

On the other side of the cemetery in a row of five tombs--for Lizzie, Lillie, Florence, Minnie, and Charley Arnold. They died in 1867, 1874, 1877, 1880, and 1883, all between one and three years of age. Their mother, Mrs. D. D. Arnold, who lived from 1838 to 1900, is buried nearby.

SOLDIERS THERE

At least two Civil War veterans are buried here. Jacob Ward's tombstone has a "C.S.A." marking on it. Only steps away is a grave marked "Unknown US Soldier" and beside it, a small metal star with the incription, "C.S.A., 1861-1865."

As Westbrook cleaned up the old cemetery, he found many stones damaged or broken, and used what he had, which included wire and old license plates, to repair what he could.

Funds are sought for the restoration of the old cemetery. An account has been opened at the Citizens National Bank, Cameron, for that purpose.

When Things Go Wrong...

After reading about the public meeting over phone rates and service in Lott last week, we recall what one elderly person said here some 15 years ago when dial service was introduced.

Said the man: "I don't need a wheel on my telephone."

That is the crux of the problem in Lott. And it has numerous counterparts in rural Texas. The elderly retire off the farm, hoping to live out their lives in quiet, but also hoping to have some of the amenities earlier life did not afford.

Problem is a town of a 1,000 like Lott or Rogers or Thorndale, requires the same basic investment for telephone service, if not more per subscriber, than a larger exchange.

And people living in that size town expect small towns somehow to operate cheaper.

If anything, it is more expensive to operate in the smaller town, which reduces service to hold costs down. And when requests for more income by a public utility are ahead of improvement of service, people get upset.

It has happened in Cameron, prior to the vast improvements of the 1960s-early 1970s. At least several city council sessions ended in flaring tempers over who was going to pay what for public need.

Beyond this, the town of this day must continue to re-evaluate what makes it survive, and today survival requires growth. What is owed to those who live out their lives in the area or town? What is needed to extend the life and breadth of the community? Or shall it be buried, funeral by funeral with the older settlers?

Everyone knows the answer to that. Inflation is historic, not the kind we've been going through, but the gradual increase of costs for goods and services. Too many towns under a couple thousand never really recovered from the Great Depression because the rural countryside of this nation has fed urban growth up to the 1970s.

Higher phone rates are a part of survival for Lott or any town. Better service is part of a utility's obligation.

If the expertise exists for local people to continue service like phone, water, electric, and gas, local residents might carry on.

But by large token, small towns are stabilizing on the renewal of interest outside of urban areas. And Lott, like Cameron of only a decade ago, will be looking for new reasons to be in the next few years.

The expertise for services usually initiates from the outside. It is only missed when it is gone. It is only noticed when things go wrong.

Assimilate Or Cancel Out...

Two types have slowed the turn-around of non-metro Central Texas: the "Super Americans" and what used to be known in 19th century politics as the "know-nothings."

Over perhaps three-quarters of a century, the two have inadvertently coalesced, though perhaps worlds apart in economics, politics, and education.

The "know-nothings" accepted the "Super Americans" because they were familiar. But anything new was naturally suspect. And the "Super Americans" didn't disturb their status by challenging the "know-nothings" because they too were part of the scene.

But in the 1950s, the system ran out of means, and the middle disappeared to the cities of North and South Texas, including the young.

Now a new middle income, developing group has moved into the cities of Central Texas--Austin, Waco, Bryan-College Station, smaller cities Cameron, Rockdale, Hearne, Marlin perhaps.

Their predecessors are assimilating or cancelling themselves out. The "Super Americans" went down with the Vietnam War and "know nothings" went with them.

Veto Of College Projects May End In Court

AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's veto of 136 college building projects (which he estimated would cost more than $1 billion) may be the subject of a court case.

University of Texas Board of Regents Chairman Allan Shivers said UT regents will defy the veto and go ahead with at least two of the rejected projects.

Shivers claims the veto is unconstitutional. He said the attorney general long ago held the governor cannot veto appropriations bill riders which do no call for specific expenditures.

The chairman further contends that UT projects will be financed with constitutional funds which cannot be controlled by an act of the legislature.

Briscoe maintains that UT, like other schools, must get College Coordinating Board approval of its construction projects under a new law—or specific legislative approval. He voted the projects, in the first place, because he interpreted them as an effort to bypass the new statute by a subterfuge prior legislative approval through the appropriations riders.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has indicated he will approve none of the UT building project vouchers in controversy without an attorney general's opinion. It has been hinted regents may seek a declaratory judgement in court to uphold their position.

Campaign Begins

Campaign for adoption of the proposed new state constitution November 4 already is shaping up.

Former Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert will lead the drive for voter support.

Governor Briscoe did not attend the initial meeting to kick off campaign plans. He made clear later that he has not made up his mind whether or not to support the revision. He has never been a supporter of annual legislative sessions, Briscoe reminded. The new constitution would provide for annual legislative sessions. It also would broaden powers of the governor considerably.

Committee Recesses

A House committee studying possible impeachment proceedings against 229th District Judge O. P. Carrillo recessed until July 9 to allow its staff time to catalogue evidence.

Chairman Rep. De Witt Hale of Corpus Christi said he is hopeful the committee will complete its work and vote on its recommendations by August.

If the committee recommends impeachment, the House will convene three weeks later to hear the case. Should the House vote articles of impeachment, the Senate then must "try" the case. A two-thirds majority would be necessary to impeach.

Courts Speak

The State Supreme Court upheld an intermediate court judgment dissolving an injunction by Judge O. P. Carillo against oil operations on the Clinton Manges Duval County ranch.

The Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed a life sentence given a Laredo rancher in the 1972 shooting of five Mexican aliens on his ranch.

A $535,866 judgment for a truck driver who was disabled when he ran into a train on a foggy night was upheld by the Supreme Court.

Truckers' $363,646 breach of contract suit verdict against the Houston Chronicle was affirmed by the Supreme Court. At issue was an agreement to transport newspapers.

An Austin district judge stopped Austin and Dallas commercial colleges from enrolling new students until they refund $230,000 in tuitions to former students. The judge also restrained an Indiana truck driving school from violations of the propriety school act.

AG Opinions

Atty. Gen. John Hill held records on suspension or revocation of alcoholic beverage licenses, except those excepted by statute, are public and should be disclosed.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

Information submitted to the Board of Insurance to fix workmen's compensation coverage rates is public.

An applicant for an occupational driver's license must offer valid proof of having an auto liability insurance policy.

Texas Private Employment Agency Regulatory Board can prescribe fees for private employment agencies where an applicant loses a job found for him in 30 days of employment.

Short Snorts

Texas Department of Public Safety estimated 54 traffic fatalities over the July 4 weekend.

A major oil, gas and sulphur lease sale by the General Land Office is scheduled for October 7.

More than a third of Texas senators have moved into rented office space in Austin during a renovation of their capitol quarters.

Fourteen planning and service areas in Texas received $1 million for services to the elderly.

Permits to sell $13.4 million in securities in Texas were filed with the State Securities Board last week.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

As Calvin Coolidge used to say, the cure for unemployment is more jobs, but of course the rub is, how can you create more jobs?

I have given this some thought and I believe what we need is a sensational new invention that'll take the country by storm. We just can't rely on the old ones anymore. I mean, take cars. Sure making cars provides a lot of jobs but there's a limit to it, as Detroit is beginning to see. Or take clothes. Changing women's styles every year held employment in the garment industry. Just as convincing men that wide-flared trousers are in right now but narrow ones will be back before the wide ones are worn out. Same thing goes for ties. Also, I've always thought that the plumbers let the economy down when they didn't try to persuade homeowners that styles in bathtubs and other bathroom items should change every spring. Bring out a new model tub every year in different colors and hood design and have people embarrassed to be using last year's model.

But even so, all that wouldn't have been enough. What we need to create more jobs is some brand new invention people simply can't live without, like television. You know, when television first appeared 90 percent of the people already had all the time-payments they could handle. They were up to their necks and nobody could imagine how they could take on one more major gadget, yet, as eveybody knows, 90 percent of the homes in the country now have television sets, and some have two

In the mind of some lonely inventor or abstract-minded scientist working late in some laboratory there must be lurking un-born some unheard-of idea which, once sprung on us, none of us can live without, and the production of which will create thousands and thousands of jobs. Don't worry, we'll find the money to buy it with somehow, and full employment will be at hand.

Has President Ford thought of offering a big prize for such an idea? The election is only about a year away.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Ranchers Welcome Rain

By Bill McCutchen

Rains Welcomed. . .

The rain was welcome last week by virtually every rancher and most farmers Pasturelands benefitted a lot from the good rains, as did some of the grain sorghum.

Charcoal rot and lodging would have probably caused a lot of problems in harvesting grain sorghums had it not been for these rains. Sorghum plants had a very shallow root system because of excess water supply and were beginning to suffer from dry topsoil even with adequate moisture a few inches deep.

The rains effect on cotton will remain to be seen. Cotton has been fruiting well and prospects at this stage on most cotton is good to excellent. Of course, it is a long time until harvest and many things can still happen to the cotton crop.

A&M Field Day Set. . .

A picture of the varied research work under way at the Texas A&M University Plantation will be offered to visitors during a field day on July 10.

Field day highlights will include a look at new grass varieties, cucumber production, pecan orchards, and beef cattle herd management, according to A. A. Melton, plantation manager and assistant professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

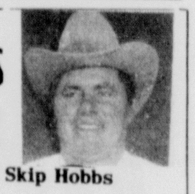
In addition, the field day will feature a number of educational booths and exhibits which will be manned by specialists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and scientists of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Registration will begin at 3:30 p.m., with tours of field plots starting at 4 p.m., says Melton.

The plantation covers some 3,000 acres in Burleson County, with headquarters located on Farm Road 50, two miles south of the intersection of Farm Roads 50 & 60.

Established in the early 1940's, the plantation operates as a commercial demonstration farm for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of the Texas A&M University System. The latest research information and techniques are put into practice on the farm, which is a self-sustaining operation.

TEXAS TALK



By Skip Hobbs

Gotham's glamour may be gone. Since the mid 1800's there has been a continual trend for people to move from the farm to town . . . from town to the city. Scientists now say the trend has not only stopped but has sharply reversed. Reasons for this shocking display of metropolitan common sense are speculated on by Dr. Wilbur Zelinsky, population expert at Pennsylvania State University, as: traumatic happenings in metropolitan areas evidenced by crime statistics, a higher affluence level which enables Americans to live where they really want to and greater ease in the building of homes and industries. Whatever the reason, statistics presented by Dr. Zelinsky, show a current migration rate of 3% of the population shifting to rural areas. That compares with 12.3% moving into the cities during the 1960's. A net difference of more than 15 percent and, according to the experts, it's likely to continue at an even faster pace.

New Pest Insecsticide Promising

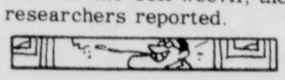
BROWNSVILLE

A new promising synthetic pyrethroid insecticide, labeled NIA-33297, performed well as a control for some important insect pests of cotton in field studies in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, according to a team of scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Besides showing promise as an effective insecticide for control of the tobacco budworm, bollworm, and the boll weevil, the insecticide is considerably less toxic to man than some of those now in use.

The field tests were conducted at Brownsville by J. W. Davis and D. A. Wolfenbarger of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS), and at Weslaco by J. A. Harding of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Laboratory tests indicated that the experimental insecticide was about 10 times more toxic than methyl parathion to both laboratory and field-collected strains of the tobacco budworm and the bollworm, and about twice as toxic to the boll weevil, the researchers reported.



In the field of world policy I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor.

Committee Announces Hearing

The House and Senate Agriculture Committees jointly announced today that public hearings would be held July 12 in Amarillo, Tex., and on July 19 in Omaha, Neb., on proposals to amend and update the 54-year-old Packers and Stockyards Act.

The Amarillo hearing will be conducted by the House Livestock and Grains Agriculture Subcommittee, which is headed by Rep. W. R. (Bob) Poage, who is also vice-chairman of the full House Agriculture Committee. Other Congressmen expected to take part in the Amarillo hearing are Reps. Jack Hightower, D-Tex.; Gler English, D-Okla.; Keith Sebelus, R,-Kan.; and Charles Thone, R-Neb.

Spokesmen for all phases of the livestock and packing business have been invited to appear at the hearings to discuss their problems generally as well as pending legislation. Measures have been introduced requiring packers and other persons buying or acquiring livestock or poultry to provide adequate bonding to pay producers where sales have been negotiated. Similar bills are pending before both the House and Senate Committees.

Basically, the 1921 Packers and Stockyards Act applies to transactions involving producers, handlers such as commission houses and auctioneers, and packing firms. It outlaws certain unfair and discriminatory trake practices.

Under some of the pending measures packers would be required to post bonds that would assure the producer payment for his livestock even though the packing firm suffered financial collapse before outstanding payment checks had cleared the banks. Commission houses already must post bond

Problems under discussion will include those of the kind which arose in the bankruptcy suit involving American Beef Packers, inc., where approximately $20 million in losses faced some 900 producers. American Beef Packers has resumed partial operation of its holdings, and legal proceedings are continuing. Changes in law which would prevent recurrence of such a situation are sought by the lawmakers. However, both Senator Clark and Representative Poage have indicated that these hearings are not to investigate American Beef Pakcers, but only to receive public comment on revisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Persons wishing to testify at the Amarillo hearing, in the Amarillo City Hall, at 10 a.m., should communicate promplty with the Amarillo office of Congressmen Hightower. The telephone number is 376-2381, area code 806. Chairman Poage has invited Senate Agriculture Committee members to participate in the Texas hearing. Sens. Bob Dole, R-Kan.; and Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., may tae part in the Amarilo hearing.

Davis Retires As Dairy Specialist

J. W. "Jimmy" Davis Jr., an important contributor to the Texas dairy industry, retired Monday, June 30, after working 18 years as dairy specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Davis emphasized the improvement of dairy herds in Texas through the effective use of records. He was also a staunch supporter of the 4-H dairy program.

Dr. John E. Hutchinson, Extension Service director said, "The dairy industry will sorely miss the service and educational leadership that have been provided by Davis during these past 18 years."

"Of special significance in recent years has been the efforts by Davis to help dairy men improve the efficiency of their operations as they have been particularly hard hit by the cost-price squeeze." added Hutchinson.

Dr. O. B. Butler, head of the Department of Animal Science at Texas A&M said that Davis had given special leadership to dairymen in herd selection programs.

Before assuming his position as dairy specialist in 1957, Davis was a field representative and official classifier for the American Jersey Cattle Club for about nine years. Prior to that he served as an assistant dairy specialist.

Davis has received many recognitions and awards from the dairy industry. Some of these awards include the American Jersey Cattle Club, Texas Jersey Cattle Club, Texas Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, and the Texas Federation of Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Inc. Since 1965 he has served as leader of the Texas Purebred Dairy Cattle Judging Conference.

Davis was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart with oakleaf Cluster in Normandy during World War II.

Davis is married to the former Ruby Louise Robbins, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Robbins of Cameron.

Farmers To Receive Questionnaire

In early July, about 24,700 Texas farmers will receive an acreage and production questionnaire from Charles Caudill, Agricultural Statistician for the Texas Crop and Livestock Report Service, Austin, Texas.

Information from this survey will be used to determine harvested acreage and production of early harvested crops for the State of Texas and for each county. Farmers who receive questionnaires are urged to complete and return them by mail. All individual reports are confidential and will be used only for state and county totals.

This survey is a cooperative effort of USDA's Statistical Reporting Service and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

JIM STAFFORD, (right) owner of Rockbrook Farms, Montalba, has announced that Rockbrook will donate a young Horned Hereford herd sire prospect to the East Texas State University, Commerce, for use in their breeding program. Dr. H. C. "Buck" Hughes, (left) will be given an opportunity to study the Rockbrook operation in depth before hvaing first choice of the Rockbrook crop.

Officials Finalize Plans For Field Day

Officials of the U.S. Feed Grains Council are finalizing plans for a seminar of field, industrial, and animal waste to be conducted in Yugoslavia in October. The program designed to increase use of American feed grains, is expected to attract delegates from 15 Eastern and Western European countries and Russia.

Heading the project are council chairman Elbert Harp of Abernathy, and council president Darwin Stolte of Washington, D.C. They are currently on tour of East Europe, inspecting council facilities and promoting the use of feed grain imported from this country.

Harp is executive director of the Lubbock-based Grain Sorghum Producers Association, which was instrumental in the formation of the council in 1960, and the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

While touring Yugosalvia, the USFGC officials participated in the Novi Sad Trade Fair, which attracted displays from farm machinery food products from 45 countries. The council booth featured a slide show on council activities, especially the use of U.S. feed grains in livestock feeding.

Boom, Boom, Boom . . . Good News For Livestock . . . How Long Will It Last? . . . Milk Production Up and Down.

Although they will fizzle in some parts of the state, crop prospects this July 4 week-end should be booming. Cotton planting is finished on the High Plains and harvesting is underway in the Valley; grain sorghum harvest is well underway in South Texas as planting is finished and in the north; prospects for many crops are now the best they've been in years.

If you're going to celebrate July 4 week-end this year, plan to make it an all-Texas food affair. You can enjoy peaches produced in Texas; watermelon season is with us; cantaloups are being harvested; and there are plenty of fresh vegetables such as tomatoes, onions, cucumbers, sweet corn, squash, and many others. And be sure to include Texas-produced beef.

Wheat harvest is about half complete; oat harvest is nearing the final stages; peanut planting is nearing completion; and soybean seeding is about finalized.

All in all this July 4 week-end, crops are looking good over most sections of the state.

GOOD NEWS, a thing which has been hard to find in agriculture in the past couple of years, is making inroads in the livestock industry.

Cattle on feed in Texas, as well as the major cattle feeding states, is showing an upward trend. Cattle feeding in the state is up six per cent from a month ago.

Even though the June 1 estimate is 42 per cent below a year ago, cattle feeding has shown a turn-around.

Cattle on feed in Texas as of June 1 totaled 1,128,000 head. Texas cattle feeders placed 288,000 head into their lots during May.

Cattle and calves on feed June 1 in the seven major feeding states totaled 5,841,000 head. Although this is down from a year ago, it is an increase over a month ago. May placements of cattle and calves on feed is up 20 per cent compared to a year ago.

Cattle feeders are showing some profit now. How long will this last? Economists note that more cattle will be coming to market in the months ahead, and this will tend to lower prices to producers later this year.

But for the time being, cattlemen are seeing some signs of improvement in their price situation.

MILK PRODUCTION is having its ups and downs in Texas. During May, milk production in the state was five per cent above last month, but one per cent below a year ago.

Production per cow is the same as last year but is above a month ago. Milk cows on farms are down one per cent from a year ago. Milk cow numbers declined 26,000 from April, the largest month-to-month drop nationwide since the month of January, 1974.

HAVE YOU DONE IT YET? Have you returned your census of agriculture form? About 99,000 Texas farmers have failed to do this, so the Census Bureau is urging you to get the census form completed and returned as soon as possible.

And they emphasize the figures you send in will not be used by an other government agency. Individual reports will be combined into county, state, and national totals.

County Agent Notes...

Ranchers Welcome Rain

By Bill McCutchen

Rains Welcomed. . .

The rain was welcome last week by virtually every rancher and most farmers. Pasturelands benefitted a lot from the good rains, as did some of the grain sorghum.

Charcoal rot and lodging would have probably caused a lot of problems in harvesting grain sorghums had it not been for these rains. Sorghum plants had a very shallow root system because of excess water supply and were beginning to suffer from dry topsoil even with adequate moisture a few inches deep.

The rains effect on cotton will remain to be seen. Cotton has been fruiting well and prospects at this stage on most cotton is good to excellent. Of course, it is a long time until harvest and many things can still happen to the cotton crop.

A&M Field Day Set. . .

A picture of the varied research work under way at the Texas A&M University Plantation will be offered to visitors during a field day on July 10.

Field day highlights will include a look at new grass varieties, cucumber production, pecan orchards, and beef cattle herd management, according to A. A. Melton, plantation manager and assistant professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

In addition, the field day will feature a number of educational booths and exhibits which will be manned by specialists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and scientists of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Registration will begin at 3:30 p.m., with tours of field plots starting at 4 p.m., says Melton.

The plantation covers some 3,000 acres in Burleson County, with headquarters located on Farm Road 50, two miles south of the intersection of Farm Roads 50 & 60.

Established in the early 1940's, the plantation operates as a commercial demonstration farm for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of the Texas A&M University System. The latest research information and techniques are put into practice on the farm, which is a self-sustaining operation.

Gotham's glamour may be gone. Since the mid 1800's there has been a continual trend for people to move from the farm to town . . . from town to the city. Cotton planting is finished on the High Plains and harvesting is underway in the Valley; grain sorghum harvest is well underway in South Texas as planting is finished and in the north; prospects for many crops are now the best they've been in years.

If you're going to celebrate July 4 week-end this year, plan to make it an all-Texas food affair. You can enjoy peaches produced in Texas; watermelon season is with us; cantaloups are being harvested; and there are plenty of fresh vegetables such as tomatoes, onions, cucumbers, sweet corn, squash, and many others. And be sure to include Texas-produced beef.

Wheat harvest is about half complete; oat harvest is nearing the final stages; peanut planting is nearing completion; and soybean seeding is about finalized.

All in all this July 4 week-end, crops are looking good over most sections of the state.

GOOD NEWS, a thing which has been hard to find in agriculture in the past couple of years, is making inroads in the livestock industry.

Cattle on feed in Texas, as well as the major cattle feeding states, is showing an upward trend. Cattle feeding in the state is up six per cent from a month ago.

Even though the June 1 estimate is 42 per cent below a year ago, cattle feeding has shown a turn-around.

Cattle on feed in Texas as of June 1 totaled 1,128,000 head. Texas cattle feeders placed 288,000 head into their lots during May.

Cattle and calves on feed June 1 in the seven major feeding states totaled 5,841,000 head. Although this is down from a year ago, it is an increase over a month ago. May placements of cattle and calves on feed is up 20 per cent compared to a year ago.

Cattle feeders are showing some profit now. How long will this last? Economists note that more cattle will be coming to market in the months ahead, and this will tend to lower prices to producers later this year.

But for the time being, cattlemen are seeing some signs of improvement in their price situation.

MILK PRODUCTION is having its ups and downs in Texas. During May, milk production in the state was five per cent above last month, but one per cent below a year ago.

Production per cow is the same as last year but is above a month ago. Milk cows on farms are down one per cent from a year ago. Milk cow numbers declined 26,000 from April, the largest month-to-month drop nationwide since the month of January, 1974.

HAVE YOU DONE IT YET? Have you returned your census of agriculture form? About 99,000 Texas farmers have failed to do this, so the Census Bureau is urging you to get the census form completed and returned as soon as possible.

And they emphasize the figures you send in will not be used by an other government agency. Individual reports will be combined into county, state, and national totals.

FROM LAW COMES FREEDOM
When God gave Moses the Ten Commandments they were largely NEGATIVE rules. "Thou shall NOT..." We should appreciate God's feeling for us!
For if you were privileged to rewrite the Commandments would you choose to make them POSITIVE? "You MUST... you've GOT TO..." Totalitarian is just the polite political name for that kind of programmed puppetry. God would have nothing of it!
Truly, every "thou shall not" inspires earnest believers to find their own rightful expressions of conviction and commitment. Our secular Law with its protections of the rights of others does not restrict our moral freedom. It simply guides it into more constructive channels, more fruitful aims.
Never does the Law say "Thou shall go to Church every Sunday." It does say "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy". REMEMBERING OUR SPIRITUAL NEEDS IS THE ESSENCE OF FREEDOM!

Shoppers who use their heads know that the way to save money on food is to plan ahead. Plan your meals for the week, including things from each of the four basic food groups: fruits and vegetables, meat, eggs, and fish, milk and dairy products and bread and cereals. Dovetail your food purchases to make the most of your meals.

Start with the main course and build around it. Consider family tastes and dietary needs. There's no point in getting a bargain on something they can't or won't eat.

Stick to your plan pretty much, but be flexible enough to incorporate good specials into the week's fare. Be on the lookout for new ideas and recipes you may see in the newspapers.

Buy edibles that can go well with others. Dairy sour cream, for instance, is not only rich in protein, vitamin A, calcium and riboflavin, it can be used as a dressing for meat or fish, in poultry stuffing or gravy, as a sauce for hot vegetables, or a dressing for cold salads, and mixed with fruit or honey, it makes an excellent dessert.

WHY IS IT?

A man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised mattress, under an advertised blanket, in advertised pajamas.

He will bathe in an advertised tub, wash with advertised soap, shave with an advertised razor, drink advertised coffee after his advertised juice, cereal and toast (toasted in his advertised toaster), put on advertised clothes and an advertised hat.

He will ride to work in an advertised car, sit at an advertised desk, smoke advertised cigarettes and write with an advertised pen.

Yet this man hesitates to advertise, saying that advertising does not pay. Finally, when his unadvertised business goes under, he will then advertise it for sale!

Bullfrogs, A Gourmet Dish

A gourmet dish that commands a fancy price in restaurants is available to Texans much of the year, with a certain amount of effort and a lot of fun.

"Bullfroggin'," by A. E. Walters III, an article in the June issue of Texas Parks and Wildlife magazine, talks about the life history of a delectable amphibian and gives useful advice on how to go after them.

Attempts have been made to farm bullfrogs for the commercial market, the author says, but the most effective and popular way of collecting them is still the old-fashioned method of "gigging."

There is a continuous open season on bullfrogs in Texas, fron season on a warm summer night in June or July, when the water becomes suitable for wading.

The author describes the types of gigs used, and the other equipment required. Then "you need only find a likely body of water and await sundown."

Approaching the frogs by boat or wading gets better results, then in areas infrequently "frogged" it is a a matter of steadily shining a light and easing slowly toward a frog before attacking. More heavily hunted waters require a bit more patience in the stalking.

In northern parts of their range bull frogs hibernate, but in Texas they are only somewhat dormant in permant in permanent deep pools they seek out in the winter. With spring they become very active around creeks, streams, and other bodies of water. Hunting them can provide many an exciting night of sport as well as the bonus of delicious eating.

The majority of edible flesh if on the rear legs but many people utilize the entire body, except the head. The magazine also includes two typical bullfrog recipes.

Texas Parks and Wildlife magazine regularly offers expert information of prime interest to hunters, fishermen, conservationsits, and alll lovers of the outdoors.
